Apartment Investment and Management Company (Aimco) Rings New York Stock Exchange Opening Bell in Honor of 25th Anniversary

Denver, CO. July 29, 2019 – Terry Considine, Chairman and Chief Executive Officer of Apartment Investment and Management Company (Aimco), one of the country’s largest owners and operators of apartment homes, will ring The Opening Bell[®] at the New York Stock Exchange (NYSE) on Tuesday, July 30th at 9:30 a.m. ET. Mr. Considine will be joined on the bell podium by Aimco teammates and senior leaders to celebrate the 25th anniversary of the company’s initial public offering on the NYSE.

Aimco has built its business around a relentless focus on the customer and an award-winning culture. Named for seven consecutive years as a Top Workplace in Colorado, and most recently on the Bay Area list of Top Workplaces, Aimco points to its intentional culture of respect, personal accountability, and collaboration as the foundation for the company’s steady success.

Aimco is a real estate investment trust focused on the ownership and management of quality apartment communities located in select markets in the United States, with ownership interests in 129 communities in 17 states and the District of Columbia. Aimco is focused on creating shareholder value through investment in a portfolio of properties diversified by price point and geography, targeted redevelopments, and a safe and flexible balance sheet.

Terry Considine will be available for interviews following the Opening Bell ceremony.
